MESSAGE FROM THE CHIEF

I am pleased to present you with the Miami Police Department's 2011 Annual Report. This publication features information about our acclaimed agency and provides a summarized report of accomplishments and statistics for the year. With the support of our elected officials and the constituents we so proudly serve, we embraced all challenges which came our way during 2011 with fervent determination, keeping in perspective our primary goal to make Miami a safer city.

On December 15th I was sworn-in as Miami's 34th Chief of Police, after having served as Interim Police Chief, at the behest of the City Manager, for over three months. Alongside my executive staff, I carried out a number of initiatives which included the organizational restructuring of various units, the decentralization of our Problem Solving Teams and the deployment of additional police officers and public service aides throughout our city's neighborhoods. This realignment was most welcomed by our citizens who had repeatedly requested more uniformed presence in the areas where they live, work or their children attend school. By year's end, our residents and merchants expressed their heartfelt appreciation for feeling safer. Our success was further evidenced by the almost immediate, successive decrease in persons shot in our city. It was clear that our new framework and vision to carry out a proactive, assertive and effective public safety plan was working well. For this, I credit the men and women of the Miami Police Department, both sworn and civilian, who work tirelessly and passionately to fight crime and the elements that contribute to crime in our great city which attracts a service population of over 700,000 daily.

Miami is a favorite destination for tourism and home to some of the world's most popular concerts, cultural events and trade shows. However, 2011 proved that we are also recognized for our outstanding reputation as a hub for law enforcement excellence. In May, our city hosted the 26th National Conference on Preventing Crime in the Black Community, followed by the 22nd Annual Problem-Oriented Policing Conference in October. Hundreds of professionals from across the globe learned from some of the MPD's most well-versed subject-matter experts on community policing and other topics and anxiously returned to their cities to implement our successful policing models. This is a tribute to the wealth of knowledge we enjoy at the Miami Police Department. Our exceptional standing in this profession was best put by Commission on Accreditation for Law Enforcement Agencies (CALEA) assessor Chief Hassan Aden on December 2, 2011 during our department's re-accreditation exit interview: "The Miami Police Department has a solid infrastructure that begins with patrol and ends with the dedicated and hard-working support staff. MPD has proven capable to reinvent itself with a focus on continuous improvement, particularly in an extremely difficult economic environment and as the needs and priorities of the community change." Upon the conclusion of his presentation, Chief Aden proudly announced that the MPD would be recommended for re-accreditation during 2012.

The following pages of this report highlight many more of the Miami Police Department's successes and efforts to work in partnership with a diverse community that expects and deserves only the best quality policing America has to offer. This is the way we do business at the MPD, where we are honored to serve you every day.

Sincerely,

Manuel Orosa Chief of Police

Revised Crime Statistics as of July 2012

*PART I CRIMES BY NET AREA

*Uniform Crime Reporting (UCR) statistics are determined after the review and/or investigation of each offense. Miami Police Department Information Technology Support Section.

**The cumulative total of each individual Part I Crime for all NET Areas may not equal the UCR Part I Crime total for individual UCR offenses for the entire City. This difference is due to the fact that crimes occurring at some areas/addresses in the City of Miami are not verifiable and as a consequence, are not attributed to any specific NET Area, but appear when individual offenses in the City are totaled.
